

Balancing

To the roof of this sick building
is a slow climb.

There's a hole in the lining of my coat where my heart is drilling its way out.

Will I float
like a mathematical bubble, diffusing through my own blood and tissue?

Will the bells ring
for me, long after
I burst,
as all bubbles do?